Initial site works on mining related agricultural development

Building on the successful relationship formed on the Nammuldi Below Water Table Project Mine site work, Rio Tinto awarded Carey the initial earthworks package of the associated agricultural project; a project made possible with the use of the surplus ground water from the mine.

Carey's scope included:

- Clearing and topsoil stripping for 72 hectares of agricultural spray fields

- Construction of new and upgrading of existing access tracks
- Maintenance of the Brockman 2 and 4 Main access roads

The project created 12 operating and supervising positions and allowed us to continue with our indigenous trainee program. The client was extremely satisfied with the finished product and also the professionalism of the site team.
